

Lesson 43:

Returning to Vision of Healing

Allowing magic to flow within

In your own words, what is the connection between the Ignition phase and healing?

Babies in the womb can be thought of as almost in a state of continual Ignition - meaning life force is so clear and uninhibited in its flow that the energy is continually streaming. In this state, the baby is thought to experience their body as a tingling vibrancy. Take a moment to imagine in your own body what that sensation might feel like. Share your reflections below.

In this lecture, I describe how entering into Ignition is the result of a sequence of development and maturation. In your own words, describe why that might be so.

Sometimes when a deep adhesion releases, a client can slip into a spontaneous Ignition in that area or limb. As the connective tissue becomes unbound, the interstitial fluid (and life force) rushes in, perfusing the cells and bringing deep vibrancy. This is when a client may cry with tears of relief; the grief of disconnection is finally acknowledged and connection is restored.
